The Colored Section: Oak Ridge Cemetery

Introduction

OAK RIDGE CEMETERY THE COLORED SECTION

There is a small section in the northwest part of Oak Ridge Cemetery that is the final resting place of many of Springfield's earliest African Americans citizens and their descendants. In many respects this section along a quiet ridge overlooking Spring Creek is a cemetery within a cemetery and it has many of the characteristics of a small, Sangamon County country cemetery. It has long been known as the "Colored Section."

The "Colored Section" is only a short walk from Block 10 or what I call Aristocracy Hill, where many prominent white families familiar to us as friends, family and associates of Abraham Lincoln are buried. The stories of those families, the Todds, the Edwards, Stuarts, the Pasfields, the Bunns and the Irwins, to name a few, have been told often and are familiar to us.

The stories of those buried in the Colored Section have not received the same attention and as I compiled this history I have been struck by the importance of their stories in understanding the Springfield that Lincoln knew. The "Colored Section" is truly one of the most historic sections of Oak Ridge Cemetery and many of those buried here played significant roles in the history of Springfield. Within its small boundaries are buried a few who were former slaves, some who were neighbors of Abraham Lincoln, some who were conductors on the Underground Railroad, one who made Lincoln's boots, another who transported Lincoln to the Great Western Station when he left Springfield for Washington, one who led Lincoln's horse in Lincoln's Springfield funeral, and one who was murdered by a mob in the 1908 Springfield Race Riot.

There are others whose graves are unmarked, yet we know from Oak Ridge Cemetery records that they are buried here. Where I have been able to find information on a person, I have included it. There are some for whom my search was in vain. I could find nothing about them. So here is the story of the "Colored Section of Oak Ridge Cemetery as best I have been able to piece it together.

In 1855, at the urging of city alderman Charles Lanphier the Springfield City Council established a new cemetery known as Oak Ridge Cemetery.<sup>1</sup> The City initially purchased a 17 acre tract of land two miles north of the State Capitol from Archer G. Herndon, the father of Lincoln's law partner, William Herndon.<sup>2</sup> The following year, the City acquired additional land, enlarging the cemetery to 28 ½ acres. The cemetery is named for a forest of oak trees of various species growing along the ridge of high ground overlooking Spring Creek.

On May 14, 1856, the City Council passed an ordinance forbidding burials within the Springfield city limits. The Journal of November 12, 1858, contained an advertisement for the sale of lots in Oak Ridge Cemetery.<sup>3</sup>

The Colored Section: Oak Ridge Cemetery

On May 24, 1860, Oak Ridge Cemetery was dedicated.<sup>4</sup> It is reported that Mary and Abraham Lincoln attended the dedication.<sup>5</sup>

In 1879, the Springfield City Council passed an ordinance that read:

The Board of Managers [of Oak Ridge] shall set apart a portion of the Cemetery grounds for the burial of the poor, another for the burial of strangers, or persons not belonging to the city, another portion for the burial of inhabitants of the city not having private lots, and another portion for the burial of colored persons.

The ordinance remained on the books until the early 1950s, although the exact year it was abolished is not known. It was apparently eliminated when the Springfield City Code was routinely rewritten.

Additional property has been acquired over the years and by the mid-1940s, there were a total of 200 acres, containing over twelve miles of roadways and drives, floral display areas and four maintenance buildings.<sup>6</sup> Today Oak Ridge Cemetery consists of over 365 acres.<sup>7</sup>

The earliest African American grave predates the 1879 Springfield City ordinance mandating “another portion for the burial of colored persons.” Jane Pellum died on November 9, 1867, and was perhaps the first African American buried in the “Colored Section” of Oak Ridge Cemetery. (1.4) There is a photograph of her grave marker on the back cover.

Many of those buried in the “Colored Section” are descendants of Phoebe Florville, the wife of William Florville, Lincoln’s friend and barber. Phoebe died on October 13, 1897, and was buried in Row 3 of the “Colored Section.” (3.11) William, however, was buried in the Catholic Calvary Cemetery that adjoins Oak Ridge Cemetery to the north. Those who are descendants of Phoebe and William Florville are so identified by a small photograph of William Florville above their name in the heading preceding the photograph of their grave.

There are also many descendants of the Rev. Henry Brown, who died on September 3, 1906 and is buried in Row 11. (11.7) Those who are descendants of Henry Brown are so identified by a small photograph of Henry Brown above their name in the heading preceding the photograph of their grave.

This book is a visual record of the 117 grave markers in the Colored Section at Oak Ridge Cemetery as of March 1, 2008. Where I have found information about a person or family buried here in one of the 117 marked graves, I have included that information. In many cases I was unable to find little or no information on a person. There are at least 198 unmarked graves and the stories of those persons go untold. My research is merely the tip of the ice berg and I hope that this book will stimulate interest in this important section of Oak Ridge Cemetery. Perhaps others will do further research and add to the stories. Hopefully the Colored Section of Oak Ridge Cemetery will be recognized as the important historic place that it is.

I hope you enjoy this excursion into a little known but important aspect of Springfield's history.

Plat of Block 5 of Oak Ridge Cemetery

The Colored Section: Oak Ridge Cemetery

I have given row numbers from 1 to 13 to the Colored Section plat and they are shown in red below. The rows are numbered from the east or front side of Block 5 to the west or back side of Block 5. Sometimes it is difficult to discern a true "row," but I believe that with a little meandering, there are "rows."

The lots are numbered, but not in any particular order so that the lot numbers in a particular row are not consecutive. When the Oak Ridge Cemetery burial records are matched against the lot numbers on the plat, one can roughly determine where each person is buried. I have numbered the grave markers in each row from the north end of each row to the south end of that row.

Burials Listed By Lot Numbers

Names from the Oak Ridge Cemetery burial register are shown below opposite the lot number where each is shown to be buried. The records show that 357 named persons are buried in the Colored Section of Block 5, but there are only 117 grave markers identifying 159 persons. There are at least 198 persons buried in unmarked graves. There are also a number of persons identified on grave markers who are not in the Oak Ridge register as official burials.

1.2 Jamieson Jenkins

1.2 Grave of Jamieson Jenkins
Date of Death: February 1, 1873

Jamieson Jenkins, a mulatto, was born in North Carolina circa 1806(10)(8).<sup>11</sup> In the summer of 1835, he was living in Wake County, North Carolina as a freeman, and he was given a permit to visit Guilford County, North Carolina, a Quaker community that was the Grand Central Station of the underground railroad in the South.<sup>12</sup> The Quakers there most likely assisted Jamieson to begin his journey north from Guilford on the underground railroad, across the Ohio River and into Indiana. In Indiana, Jamieson married Elizabeth Pelham (Pellum), a Virginia-born mulatto who was born circa 1807, the daughter of Jane Pellum. (1.4) In 1844, they had a daughter, Nancy. (4.6) Sometime between Nancy's birth in 1844 and 1848, Jamieson and his family moved to Springfield.

On September 2, 1848, Elizabeth Pellum Jenkins transferred her church membership from the Colored Methodist Church of Springfield to the Second Presbyterian Church, now the Westminster Presbyterian Church—the abolitionist church. On November 5, 1848, Jamieson Jenkins was received into the same church on profession of faith.<sup>13</sup> This is the first written evidence of Elizabeth and Jamieson Jenkins' presence in Springfield.

The 1850 Census scheduled 42 year-old "Jimison Jarkins", 43 year-old Elizabeth and 6 year-old Nancy. Jamieson is listed as a mulatto drayman. Living with the Jenkins family was Jane Watkins, a 17 year-old mulatto who had been born in Virginia, and Quilly Ann Watkins, a 12 year-old mulatto who had been born in Indiana.<sup>14</sup> The family resided in Springfield on the east side of Eighth Street, between Jackson and Edwards Streets, a block south of the Lincoln home.

Living next door to the Jenkins family in the household of James Blanks was 14 year-old mulatto Bellfield Jenkins who was born in Indiana<sup>15</sup> Also living in the household were 35 year-old Martha A. Blanks, James' wife, and Jane Pellum, age 62 (1.4) the mother of Elizabeth P. Jenkins, both of whom were born in Virginia. Also living in the household was 13 year old Lydiann Gibson who was born in Indiana.

Jameison Jenkins Underground Railway Conductor

On the evening of January 16, 1850, Jamieson Jenkins assisted seven runaway slaves move 60 miles north along the underground railroad from Springfield to Bloomington. During the week that followed, Springfield's Journal and Register newspapers printed five confusing and sometimes contradictory reports on the presence of the runaway slaves and called the events that transpired a "slave stampede." It was initially and incorrectly rumored around Springfield that Jamieson Jenkins had betrayed the slaves, resulting in their capture.

On January 17, 1850, the Register reported that on the previous day Springfield citizens had captured eleven runaway slaves belonging to citizens of St. Louis. On the same day, the Journal reported that fourteen runaway slaves from St. Louis and Kentucky were discovered in Springfield on their way north. Three men attempted to arrest them, but a fight ensued. Only one slave, a lame negro, was arrested and placed in the city jail.

On January 18, 1850, the Register corrected its January 17 report that eleven runaway slaves had been captured. It reported that only eight were caught, and that after publication of the January 17 paper, seven escaped. The remaining slave, the lame negro, was "now in jail." Three days later, the Register reported that the captured lame slave had been brought before the Supreme Court upon a writ of habeas corpus and released.

On January 22, 1850, the Journal published a letter signed "Justice" concerning what he called the "slave stampede in our neighborhood."

We have received a communication in relation to the late "slave stampede" in our neighborhood, of this tenor:

Rumor may have it, that it was a colored person [Jameson Jenkins] who betrayed the runaways last week. But unfortunately the one they accuse of having done so, started north with a part of the same gang the night before the capture. And this rumor was only to prevent, and may be save the 'under-ground car' from being upset or overtaken.

The Colored Section: Oak Ridge Cemetery

On January 23, 1850, the Journal printed a letter of response from “A Friend to Justice” which stated that the rumor that the runaway slaves had been betrayed by a local African American [Jamieson Jenkins] was false and in fact, the rumor was a ruse “to prevent, and maybe, to save the underground car from being upset or overtaken.” Jenkins had in fact gone north by stage to Bloomington with some of the runaway slaves. The affidavit of J. C. Goodhue, stage coach agent, stated, “This is to certify that Mr. Jenkins left for Bloomington on the 16th day of January, 1850 in the stage.” The letter reads as follows:

Messrs, Editors:--In your paper of the 22d inst., there is a communication signed “Justice” which refers to the slave stampede in this neighborhood on the 16th, saying “that it was rumored that a colored person had betrayed the slaves, but, unfortunately, the one they accuse of having done so, started north with a part of the same gang the night before the capture; and this rumor was only to prevent, and maybe, to save the underground car from being upset or overtaken.” Now, in order to correct public sentiment in regard to that man’s conduct in this matter, I would refer them to the following certificate of the agent of the northern line of stages:

Springfield, January 22, 1850

This is to certify that Mr. Jenkins left for Bloomington on the 16th day of January, 1850, in the stage.

J. C. Goodhue, agent.

A Friend to “Justice”<sup>17</sup>

Journal Report on Capture of Runaway Slaves Captured<sup>18</sup>

On August 29, 1851, Jamieson Jenkins’ membership in the Second Presbyterian Church was terminated due to his having failed to answer charges of not attending Church meetings and licentiousness.<sup>19</sup>

August 5, 1851. Session met & was opened with prayer. Members present. Joseph Thayer, Thomas Moffett, E. B. Hawley & the pastor. Absent. John B. Watson. C. R. Miller.

Jamieson Jenkins a member of the Church was charged with breach of covenant in not attending the meetings of the Church, and also with licentiousness. A copy of the charges were made out, and E. B. Hawley and C.R. Welles, appointed a committee to notify him of this charge & the time for the trial, as the Book of discipline directs.

August 29. The serving of the notice for trial with the charges was duly attended to by the Committee appointed in the case of Jamieson Jenkins as above. The time of trial was set & he, not appearing was subsequently notified again. At the time appointed for the second meeting of the session to attend to his case, he did not appear. The session now being convened & deeming it needless to make further attempts to bring said Jenkins before them, it was voted that he be cut of from the Church for contumacy. Session adjourned. Closed with prayer.

In 1855, the Jamieson Jenkins family was living on the east side of Eighth Street, between Jackson and Edwards Streets. This was in the block south of the Abraham Lincoln family home. Jamieson was making his living as a drayman.<sup>21</sup>

“...black women Jane Jenkins colored woman did not live there (at Lincoln's home)—in next block...”<sup>22</sup>

In the 1860 Census and Springfield City Directory, the Jamieson Jenkins family was still living down the street from the Lincolns and 50 year-old Jamieson was making his living as a drayman. His wife Elizabeth was a 45 year-old washerwoman.<sup>23</sup> Their daughter Nancy was 16 years old. Also living in the household was Quilly Ann Watkins, a 20 year-old mulatto who was born in Indiana.<sup>24</sup> Elizabeth had $880 worth of real estate and $45 worth of personal property.

On February 11, 1861, Jamieson Jenkins drove President-elect Abraham Lincoln on his last Springfield carriage ride from the Chenery House at the northeast corner of Fourth and Washington Streets to the Great Western Railroad depot to begin his trip to Washington.<sup>25</sup>

The underground Railroad developed to help fugitive slaves escape from the South and reach freedom farther North. Rumors circulated that an Underground Railroad was operating in Springfield. The presumed “conductor” was Jameson Jenkins, a mixed race Springfielder from North Carolina. Jenkins, a drayman, was a forty-year-old family man with a wife and daughter. His wife was a native Virginia, and his daughter was born in Indiana, indicating that the trajectory Jenkins followed to Illinois probably took him through those two states. Jenkins was a fairly successful drayman, owning 50 percent more property than the average African American, suggesting that he operated his own cart or “dray.” He also managed to harbor two free African American girls in his household of five. On the day that Abraham Lincoln left Springfield for Washington, Jenkins drove him to the railroad station.<sup>26</sup>

On April 9, 1861, Nancy H. Jenkins (4.6) married William L. Florville, (3.10) in Springfield. They had at least three children, Aquilla, Uretta and Elizabeth.<sup>27</sup> Mary and Nancy H. Jenkins are likely the same person.

On February 1, 1873, Jamieson Jenkins, age 65(7) died, and was buried Oak Ridge Cemetery.<sup>28</sup>

Amanda Fry was born on December 9, 1826, in Kentucky, the daughter of Richard and Mary Fry.<sup>50</sup> On April 2, 1846, the Journal reported that the Reverend Albert Hale, minister of the Second Presbyterian Church, had married 36 year-old Samuel S. Ball and 20 year-old Amanda Fry. They were licensed to marry on March 21, 1846.<sup>51</sup> Their children were Jonathon, Smith, Edward F., born in 1847, Mary L. and Elizabeth, born in 1850.

Samuel S. Ball died on September 16, 1852. He died without a will. On September 18, 1852, Samuel's father-in-law Edmund Fry (2.7) filed a petition to administer the estate in the Sangamon County Court. The petition is in the handwriting of William H. Herndon, leading one to conclude that the firm of Lincoln and Herndon represented the estate of Samuel S. Ball.<sup>52</sup> On September 20, 1852, Robert J. Robinson, a "colored barber" according to the 1859 City Directory of Springfield, and Andrew W. Jackson<sup>53</sup> were appointed administrators of the Estate of Samuel S. Ball. Where is he buried?

Amanda remarried on August 12, 1869 to Cyrus C. Richardson.<sup>54</sup> She died on May 4, 1882 at age 65 of cancer of the stomach, and is buried in Oak Ridge Cemetery.

Dr. S. A. WARE, A. B., M. D.

Dr. Ware is Springfield's pioneer colored physician, having been in active practice for more than thirty years.

He has been very successful due to his thorough preparation and close application to his work. In fact he has built up a large and lucrative practice among a clientele embracing people of all nationalities.

At present he holds a position with the state board of health, being connected with social pathological work, to which department of medicine he has given especial study and research.

He is intensely human, and has none of that aloofness characteristic of many professional people. His patients and the general public regard him not only as an able physician but also as friend and genial fellow citizen.

Especially notable is Dr. Ware's musical accomplishments. He is a member of the musician's union and is also active in social circles.

His rare singing has captivated many audiences, so that it is evident Dr. Ware is a man of talent and versatility.

An intense race man at all times, a genial good fellow to meet, charitable in impulses, of broad and liberal views, Dr. Ware is well worthy of the great esteem in which he is held by the people of central Illinois.

Phoebe Rountree married William Florville on July 28, 1832,<sup>103</sup> soon after his arrival in Springfield in 1831.

William Florville was born about 1806, at Cape Haytien, West India. When a revolution commenced, in 1821 and 22, his god-mother took him to Baltimore, Maryland, and kept him in St. Mary's Convent until her death. William was then bound by the orphan's court to learn the trade of a barber. He then went to New Orleans, thence to St. Louis. In the fall of 1831, William and others from St. Louis went on a hunting excursion up the Mississippi, Illinois and Sangamon rivers to New Salem, then a part of Sangamon County. It was late in the evening as William approached the village of New Salem. He fell in with a tall man, wearing a red flannel shirt and carrying an axe on his shoulder, just returning from his day's labor in the woods. They fell into an easy conversation and walked to a little grocery store together. The tall man was Abraham Lincoln who soon learned that the stranger was a barber, nearly out of money and aiming to reach Springfield. That was enough to enlist the good will of Lincoln, who took William to the house where Lincoln boarded, told the people that he was a barber. That opened the way for an evening's work among the boarders. The next morning, William started on his way rejoicing, and reached Springfield the second day. Mr. Florville was soon recognized by Dr. E. H. Merriman, a Springfield physician with whom he was acquainted in Baltimore and St. Louis. Dr. Merriman helped William in various ways including William's opening a shop in Springfield, the first barber shop in the city. Mr. Florville also spent some time in the employ of Gen. James D. Henry.<sup>104</sup>

William Florville

William and Phoebe Florville had five children:

1. Samuel Henry was born in Springfield, Illinois, on May 10, 1832. He lived there, attended school, and worked in his father's barber shop, until seventeen years of age, when he struck out for himself. He worked in Chicago and New York, one year; then worked at the barber's trade in Madison and Janesville, Wisconsin. In 1865, he returned to Springfield, where he had a barber shop at his father's old stand, 602 East Adams Street. He married on October 26, 1874, at Waverly, to Mary Belle Greene, who was born in 1849 in Morgan County. She died on November 23, 1875.

2. Varvell was born in 1839, in Springfield. In 1862 he went into the Union Army under Maj. Gen. McClernand, and was with him in all of his campaigns. He came home and died on October 2, 1864, and is buried in Calvary Cemetery, Springfield, Illinois.

3. William Laue. See 3.10.

4. Alseen (Alcene) was born in December, 1833, in Springfield. She married in 1851 to Mahlon Chaverous and they had two children:

Julia C. was born on April 28, 1852, and married on April 27, 1871, to Clark Duncan, who was born on October 5, 1850, near Russellville, Kentucky. They had two children, Alseen and Otis B. Julia C. and Addie.

3.14 Clark Duncan

3.14 Grave of Clark Duncan
Date of Death: April 7, 1929

Clark Duncan was born on October 5, 1850, near Russellville, Kentucky. His parents were also born in Kentucky. During the Civil War, he served in Company B, 6th United State Colored Cavalry. He mustered out as a sergeant in 1866.

Clark arrived in Springfield by 1870, and on April 27, 1871, he married Julia C. Chaverous. Julia was born on April 28, 1852, the daughter of Alseen Florville (3.11) (daughter of William and Phoebe Florville (3.11)) and Mahlon Chaverous.<sup>111</sup> They were married in the First African Methodist Episcopal Church, now St. Paul's.

In the 1870 Census, Clark Duncan was listed as a 22 year-old black man working at the Leland Hotel as a porter.<sup>112</sup> By 1874, Clark and Julia Duncan had moved into a home at 312 North 13th Street, where they, and most of their children, would live for 55 years until their deaths. In the 1880 census, Clark Duncan was listed as a 30 year old mulatto servant. He was married to Julia Duncan.<sup>113</sup> In the 1887 City Directory, he was listed as working at the Leland Hotel and residing at 312 North 13th Street.

Clark and Julia Chaverous Duncan became the parents of one son, Otis Beverly Duncan, born on November 18, 1873, in Springfield, and three daughters, Alseen or Alcenia born on February 13, 1872, (3.13) and a daughter Addie Louise, or Ada L., born in 1875 and Clara born on September 12, 1882. (2.8) Each of the daughters graduated from Springfield High School and each became a school teacher. Otis was sent to business school where he trained as a printer. He worked as a printer for the State Superintendent of Public Instruction and was the publisher of a weekly colored newspaper in Springfield, The State Capital. During this time Otis corresponded with Frederick Douglass.

Clark Duncan, Otis B. Duncan and Julia Florville Chaverous Duncan

Alcina Duncan (3.13) graduated in 1889 and left home to teach school in Missouri. After four years, she became ill and returned to her parents home in Springfield. In 1895, at age 23, she died of tuberculosis.

In 1900, Julia Duncan opened a grocery store at 812 East Washington, and a few years later daughter Addie left her teaching position to operate the store. She expanded the business by advertising, installing telephone service, and joining with a partner, Thomas R. Thompson. The new firm was known as Duncan & Thompson, Grocers.

When young physician Sheppard Anderson Ware (2.8) arrived in Springfield from Tennessee, he boarded with the Duncan family. Practicing for many years at 627 East Adams, Ware married the second Duncan daughter, Clara, in 1904. (2.8)

Otis B. Duncan was a part of the noted Illinois National Guard 8th Infantry. His regiment was mustered into Federal service during World War I as the 370th Infantry, assigned to the 93rd Division. He was promoted to Lieutenant Colonel of the new regiment, which fought at Saint Mihiel and in the Argonne. The highest-ranking African American commissioned officer in the World War I American Expeditionary Force, Otis was awarded the Croix de Guerre. After the war, his unit was again named the Eighth Infantry Regiment in the Illinois National Guard, and Governor Frank O. Lowden commissioned Otis its colonel. The American Legion Post 809, at 1800 East Capitol, is named in his honor. Otis also was an alternate delegate to the 1920 Republican National Convention from Illinois. Otis died on May 17, 1937, and was buried in Camp Butler National Cemetery, Springfield, Illinois. All of the family members except Otis are buried at Oak Ridge Cemetery. He chose to be interred among Army comrades in Camp Butler National Cemetery.

Addie Duncan, who never married, continued the grocery business until retiring in 1924. Otis remained a bachelor, and Clara and Dr. Ware had no children, but reared two foster children.

In 1926, Clark and Julia Duncan were residing at 312 North 14th Street.<sup>114</sup>

MRS. JULIA FLORIVEL DUNCAN

Mrs. Julia Florivel Duncan is a member of one of the oldest families in the state of Illinois. She has been identified with the State Federation since its birth and has held most of its important offices. As president of the Springfield Colored Woman's Club, she introduced to the Federation, the idea of the "Mother's Chain", in order to stimulate and encourage the highest ideals of motherhood.

Mrs. Duncan is the proud mother of our gallant Col. Otis B. Duncan of the "fighting 8th" regiment.

The Julia Duncan Auxiliary of the 8th Regiment has recently been organized at Springfield, in her honor, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan celebrated their golden wedding anniversary two years ago.

Clark Duncan died on April 7, 1929, in Springfield, and was buried in Oak Ridge Cemetery.<sup>115</sup>

The Duncan's were among many of the black families affected by the 1908 Race Riot in Springfield. The following is taken from the Sociogenesis of a Race Riot:

The first hit-and-run attack on a carefully selected black target occurred late in the first night's outbreak when whites fleeing the militia in the Badlands chose to sack one last black residence before retiring for the evening. Many black home lay along the section of North Thirteenth Street through which they retreated, but the rioters targeted only one, a large two-story, wood frame house owned by the Duncans, a very prominent black family. The head of the Duncan clan, Kentucky-born Clarke Duncan, owned not only the house, but a successful grocery store as well. His son, Otis Duncan, was well known in the black community, for he held a desirable position in the state government and served as a major in the black Eighth Regiment of the state militia. Otis Duncan's sister had married one of Springfield's two black physicians. The Duncan's were counted as part of the city's small black elite and were, according to Margaret Ferguson, precisely the kind of blacks whom working-class whites resent most.

The Duncans, like many black families in the area, had evacuated their home earlier. The rioters passed up the other black homes on the street and immediately surrounded their house. After breaking windows and throwing rocks against the outside of the building, the rioters "entered the building, smashed a fine piano into kindling, they smashed furniture, fired a bullet through a large mirror on a dresser in Major Duncan's room." They also looted the place for valuables—money, a gold watch, diamond rings belonging to Mrs. Duncan—and carried off Otis Duncan's militia uniform and dress saber: "To make the looting good," reported one newspaper, "they carried away a birdcage and its occupant." Margaret Ferguson remembered other details: "There was quite a large picture on the wall of his [Otis Duncan's] mother. When the mob broke in his house, they took this saber off the wall and gouged the eyes out of his mother's picture."<sup>116</sup>

Date of Death: March 21, 1914

Date of Death: April 23, 1911

John Edward Jackson, called Edward, was born in Springfield, Illinois, on August 11, 1845. His father was John Jackson, an African American man who was born in Culpepper County, Virginia on July 16, 1804. Edward's mother was Matilda Foster Jackson who was born in Kentucky in 1820.<sup>117</sup> John was a member of the African Baptist Church, and Matilda was a member of the African Methodist Episcopal Church.

The 1860 United States Census states that John the father was a whitewasher. The family lived on at what was then addressed as 85 S. 9th Street, between Edwards and Cook Streets. (608 South Ninth) The Jackson's were neighbors of Lincoln. The family consisted of John Edward, Henrietta, age 18, Edward, age 15, Georgeana, age 14, Josephine, age 10, and Diana Tyler, age 80 and a native of Virginia. The children listed were all born in Illinois. John the father died on November 20, 1876, and Matilda the mother died on August 26, 1880.

John “Edward” worked for different parties and attended common school until October, 1862, when he was employed as messenger boy in the Adjutant General's office until August 24, 1869. He then went to Chicago, Illinois, and was there employed on the Pittsburg & Fort Wayne and C. C. & I. C. Railroads as porter and conductor of a Pullman Palace Sleeper. He remained in this business until 1871, when the big fire in Chicago broke out, and he lost all he had in the fire and came back to his home in Springfield. In Springfield, he was employed in L. H. Coleman's carpet store, where he remained about three years. On November 13, 1875, he began to work in the Ridgely National Bank, where he was employed in 1881.

On July 9, 1874, John “Edward” Jackson married Matilda J. Wright at Springfield.<sup>118</sup> Matilda, the daughter of Thomas J. Wright, born in Kentucky, and Sarah Ann Fortune Wright, was born in Huntsville, Missouri, on February 11, 1847. Thomas J. Wright was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and came to Springfield, Illinois, in 1856. Sarah Fortune Wright was born in Virginia and also a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. They had three children, one living, viz: John T. C. Jackson. John “Edward” Jackson, cast his first vote for U. S. Grant for President. Edward and Matilda were members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.<sup>119</sup>

John “Edward” Jackson died on March 21, 1914, and was buried in Oak Ridge Cemetery.<sup>120</sup> Thomas Jackson died on April 23, 1911, and was buried in Oak Ridge Cemetery.

Lincoln's Barber's 'Little Shaver' Is 93 Years Old

By George Derwig

"The Quality Man" is 93 years old today, and enjoying every minute of the observance, including a chicken dinner and a big cake.

For newcomers to Springfield, he is Thomas J. Richardson of 1515 E. Capitol Ave., the hale and hearty grandson of William de Fleurville, who was Lincoln's barber.

Richardson earned his nickname because of his integrity during 57 years in the produce business, most of them as commission merchant.

"Truth and honesty," he said bristly today, "that's how I held on so long."

Regular hours haven't hurt either, he indicated, quoting the adage, "Early to bed and early to rise makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise."

He retired 20 years ago, but still keeps busy collecting rents, keeping records and playing with the tame squirrels that live in his backyard.

Like his grandfather, whose industriousness the Illinois State Register praised in a poem on Sept. 3, 1945, Richardson has been wide awake when it came to making a dollar.

His family no longer owns the property on the north side of Washington Street between 8th and 9th Streets, or other properties about the Old State House Square — including the present Springfield Marine Bank location.

Richardson still does own, however, about six other properties, including the house in which he was born and still lives, according to Jack Finmer, who has been Richardson's attorney for 25 years.

But because of the old gentleman's keenness of mind, Finmer said his services in recent years have been limited to taking care of Richardson's income tax returns. "But the old fellow still prepares the details meticulously," Finmer said. "All I have to do is set out the details of his chronological statement."

This keen mind was most evident during a birthday interview, as Richardson, with pride told about his family's than a half century as an independent commission merchant.

Keeping step with progress, Richardson transferred his operations from team and wagon to a truck, which was a familiar sight in Springfield through the early 1940's.

Among his early customers was the first Candler market and the Franzen & Franzen store.

Richardson married twice, the last time when he was about 70. He was widowed both times.

Among his treasured mementoes is a pair of shoes given his first bride by her brother, a shoemaker. A fine, handworked shoes of soft leather, they looked "too manish" for her. She offered them to him in exchange for a "new pair of lady's shoes."

He still wears the 70-year old footgear in warm weather.

Another is a white silk handkerchief with a purple border, given him about 70 years ago by "Mr. Hull, when he returned from a trip."

A third is a pair of 40-year-old kid gloves, he once wore on formal occasions.

One of the most precious to him is a photograph of Grandfather de Fleurville, known as "Billy the Barber," in its original oval solid walnut frame.

A companion photograph of Lincoln "just seems to have gotten away," he said wistfully. So has the long mirror before which Richardson's grandfather shaved Lincoln.

But he has memories which can't be taken away. Among these are the old Carrier Mission, built by Jack Priest on the present location of the Boy's Club on 10th Street, and of Priest's blue roamed mules singing out in the back pasture.

A deeply religious man, Richardson belongs to Sacred Heart parish, but restricts his devotions to prayers three times a day at home. He doesn't stray from his yard these days because "time is catching up with me," he said pointing to his body.

"But I'm not getting rusty up here," he said, "directing his right index finger to his temple."

His library, the news media and his friends keep him abreast of culture and current events.

One of his most remarkable traits is Richardson's ability to recite verse to emphasize a point, or to answer a question to which he doesn't care to venture a direct opinion.

He has three daughters, Mrs. Harrison Smith and Mrs. Mary H. Green of Springfield; Mrs. Edythe Webster of Chicago, and one son, Shelby Richardson of Ann Arbor, Mich. His son is ill and unable to attend his father's 93rd birthday celebration. The daughters will be here for a weekend party at a granddaughter's home.

Today's observance is a special private occasion, prepared by Mrs. Smith.

Richardson has eight grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

When he's in the mood, he regales them with tales of the past, especially those concerning the great friendship between his grandfather and Mr. Lincoln. Grandfather de Fleurville's assistance in establishing the Catholic Church here, the first Mass was said in his home at 6th and Adams Streets — and de Fleurville's general interest in religion by contributing substantially to the construction of the original First Christian Church — as well as his early days as a produce commission merchant.

What do his children and friends say today?

"He has justified his heritage. Happy Birthday!"

Addie Chaverous Jones was born on December 12, 1856, in Decatur, Illinois, the daughter of Alseen Florville and Mahlon Chaverous, and the granddaughter of William and Phoebe Florville. (3.11) She died May 29, 1879.

She was married to Lewis (Louis A.) Jones who in the 1880 census is listed as a 28 year-old mullato working as a janitor at the State House. Louis A. Jones, was born on Cassiday's Plantation, near Bowling Green, the county seat of Barren County, Kentucky, on July 4, 1852. His father John was also born in Kentucky and was a farmer, and died in the fall of 1859. Lewis' mother, Nancy T. Cassiday, was born in Kentucky.

When six years of age, Lewis was sold and taken with his mother, Nancy, to Oakalona, Mississippi. Two years later he freed and he began to work for Captain Conover. At the close of the Civil War, Lewis went with Captain Conover to Cass County, Illinois. He remained there three years, and then moved to Livingston County for one year. He then went to Springfield, Illinois, and worked one year for J. B. Spaulding in a nursery at Riverton. He then for one summer laid track on the Wabash Railroad from Jacksonville, Illinois, to Alexander, Illinois. He then was messenger boy three years for Charles Matheny, Sr. and then "worked as messenger boy for R F. Ruth, two' years. On March 2, 1877, he began to work as messenger boy, and worked for him two years and two months. He then kept a provision store on Monroe, between Fourth and Fifth streets, eighteen months, when he was employed as a janitor in the office of Railroad and Warehouse Commission.<sup>135</sup> Lewis. Jones is a Mason, and a member of Blue Lodge, No.3, at Springfield, Illinois. Addie, his wife, was a member of Shiloh Court, No.1 and Eastern Star Chapter, No. 2.

Addie and Lewis had one child, Julia, who was born on February 28, 1879.<sup>136</sup>

William K. Donnegan was born in Kentucky about 1832, and came to Springfield in 1845. In 1857, he built a house on the north side of Jefferson Street, between 8th and 9th Streets (53 Jefferson<sup>137</sup>), just five blocks north of the Lincoln Home. Donnegan was a shoe maker with his shop on the north side of Adams Street, between Seventh Street and the Public Square, just a block east of the Lincoln & Herndon law offices. The builder, B. S. Mauxy, charged $450.<sup>138</sup> He also imported black laborers from the South.

William K. Donnegan

In 1860, William was living in the Jefferson Street house, the present site of a Horace Mann parking lot. William was a 28 year-old shoe maker with a shoe shop on the north side of Adams, between 7th and the Public Square. He owned real estate worth $900 and personal property worth $100.

Living with him was Levina, a 19 year old African American who had been born in Missouri, and Thomas, a six year-old African American who was born in Illinois. Also living with William were Jesse Ayerse, a 15 year old colored person who had been born in Kentucky, 60 year-old Mrs. Leona Knox, who was born in Illinois, and 19 year-old John who was born in Illinois and was a bill poster.<sup>139</sup>

William K. Donnegan: Conductor on the Underground Railroad in Springfield

Recently, Curtis Mann, Manager of the Sangamon Valley Room at Springfield's Lincoln Library, discovered a William K. Donnegan reminiscence published in the Old Settlers Department of the May 1898 edition of Springfield's The Public Patron.<sup>140</sup> Donnegan's reminiscence deserves an unedited and complete publication. It follows:

Most old people will remember, and many young ones have read in their school histories about the celebrated "Underground Railways" established throughout the Northern States in the old slavery days, before the civil war. If all of the thrilling events incident to the escapes, and attempted escapes of runaways were written out they would form a volume as intensely interesting and dramatic as any of the "blood and thunder" novels of any age or authorship.

Springfield was by no means wanting in such events, and we give the following story as a sample. It comes from a well-known colored citizen of Springfield, himself and brothers free-born, and bent on freeing others, as can well be guessed from the narrative that follows. The story will be given as nearly as possible exactly as he relates it.

"I lived, in those days, on the north side of Jefferson, between Eighth and Ninth streets, in a story and a half house. It is still standing, and I could show you the garret yet in which many a runaway has been hidden while the town was being searched. I have secreted scores of them, I once had seven hundred dollars in gold and silver turned into my lap by the owner of a slave as a bribe for my assisting in his recapture. This took place in my shoe shop on Fourth street. The house is not now standing. Well, could not capture the fellow, and had to return the money; but all the same he was under a pile of leather in that very room when the money was paid.

"One early morning in the summer or spring of 1858, I think it was, George Burreas, a barber and a near neighbor of mine, came into my shop somewhat excited and wanted me to go home at once. He said that during the night a wagon had driven up to his house and hurriedly unloaded a runaway slave girl, the driver getting away as quickly as possible, explaining that they had been hotly pursued from Jacksonville, and that their pursuers could not be far away then. He also hurriedly explained that the girl must be concealed carefully and quickly as she was a dangerous character, being hard to manage. What was especially dangerous was that she had an excellent memory and could tell the name of every man, woman and baby along the route. She had come from St. Louis to Springfield. She was liable to give all of them away to authorities by her imprudence. You must recollect that we didn't know another's names. It was best not. When a man unloaded one or more Negroes at my house or at any other station in the night (it was always done then) his name was not asked. But this girl had caught the names and would tell them. So George said I must take her and hide her.

"I went home at once and found a girl about sixteen years of age and weighing about one hundred and forty pounds. This man Burreas, you understand, lived right by me, and the girl has been left there by mistake in the excitement. I said, "See here, gal, they say that you're in danger of giving us all away, and if you don't do as I tell you, or if you threaten to get us into trouble, I'll shoot you. She replied that she hoped I'd shoot here if she was about to be recaptured. She said that a brother and a sister of hers had been caught again and burned. She was in earnest, too; but smart as she was, she was a fool. She had no judgment; she wanted to see everything. I sent her into the back part of the house and told her to keep out of sight. I stayed around, and in about an hour I saw three men – one red-headed – coming down the street. As they approached, the girl peeped out of a window and exclaimed, "O, that's my young master and his father." I told to go quick the back way to Burreas' house. She had hardly got out of sight when in came the three inquiring for a wash woman who lived there. I told them there was none there – they must be mistaken in the place. They seemed disappointed, and came on into the kitchen. Finding nobody, and having no excuse, they reluctantly went out again at the front door.

"I knew they'd go to Burreas', and as soon as they left the door I manage to slip back by the back way and come into the kitchen. So, as they entered the house, she left and came into mine. I hustled her into the attic, and told her to go away back and crawl in behind the chimney and stay there till I told her to come out. Well, the men came back and fooled around awhile and left disappointed.

"Now what was to be done was a question. I knew the house would be watched all night. I heard in the afternoon that about thirty men had been engaged about town for that night. A full description of her had been given in the Springfield Register as she looked when she ran away, with an offer of, I think, $500 for her capture. I knew she was a dangerous girl to keep about the place and finally hit on an expedient. Another girl, almost white, lived near named Hal, who was just about this girl's size and form, but this runaway was quite black. I went down town and got a pair of white gloves and a white false face, which I knew in the darkness would give the impression of whiteness. I told her what to call me, and what to talk about and instructed her to alter her voice, so that if her master heard he would not know her. I knew that the dog-fennel all around between me and Ninth street would probably be full of men watching who came to or left my house after night.

The Colored Section: Oak Ridge Cemetery

When it was dark enough I sallied out with her, talking to Hal loud enough to be heard, and she talking to me about things that happened days before. We started east, I intending to get her into a house in the east of town for awhile. We hadn't got far when three men passed us, one of whom I recognized as a Springfield man named Emmet. Immediately after passing they had stopped and were holding a consultation. I heard a man say:

"She moves exactly like my girl."

"No," said another, "this one's white."

"Well, I believe we ought to get her away – I believe it's the girl I'm after," was the reply.

I heard Emmet say, "You'd better be careful not to make a mistake. He carries bowie knife and a shooter that will kill at 150 yards, and he's the kind that uses them."

"Well, I won't risk my life for any nigger," was the reply.

They kept at a distance, but still knew where we went. I couldn't get the girl taken in at the house to which we went, so thought I'd take her up to the timber near the Converse school, hoping to escape pursuit there. I went directly north on Ninth street, but they blocked my game, outflanked me and got there ahead. I began to think it was dangerous to get into the woods with those three against me, so I turned down the C & A track and went over to Third street, and back towards town. The men still followed. Near Carpenter street a bulldog broke his chain and attacked us, catching hold of the girl's skirts. She screamed. I told her to be still, and placing my revolver to the dog's head I fired, splattering its brains over my hands. Then I turned to the men who were crowding still closer and shouted that I would kill any four-legged or two-legged dogs that bothered me much more. At this they fell back somewhat. I was going down Fourth street by this time, towards a Methodist church that stood there then, and in which there was a meeting that night. It all at once occurred that I might make this useful. I went to a man at the door and told him I was being followed, and asked him in a few moments to open the door widely and close it again, while we slipped around the building and out of sight. I thought the men would think we went in and while they were looking we might escape. And sure enough, that worked! They stopped, and while they were finding out that we were not in the house we doubled on our track as fast as possible, crossed the C & A going west, jumped over a fence and made away for the woods and down where the present O & M track is, towards the old West Shaft. I was aiming to get to a Mr. Gardner's or Lyman's, one of our stations near the Beardstown road, west of Bradfordton. As I drew near the bridge over the creek west of the city I thought I'd better be cautious, as it might be guarded. So, going off a few rods from the road, I made the girl climb up into the fork of a red-bud tree to wait until I went forward to look for enemies. The woods were full of wild hogs and cows, the latter being quite fierce when they had calves as many of them had, so I told her she must not come down till I came back. Some little distance from the bridge a dog growled at my side. I gave it some meat – I always carried a lunch on such occasions – and soon quieted it. Going cautiously forward I found the bridge at the old mill guarded by a dozen with guns. I came back to where the girl was. She said she was afraid and must come down, and in fact did climb down. I made her get up, and again left her, going this time up to the bridge on the Beardstown road. It was guarded. I tried to find a place to cross but could not as the stream was full, so I went back again to where I left the girl. It was now getting on towards daylight. Presently I heard the clatter of horses' feet and the whole company swept by on horses toward town. They had left for the night. But it was too late for us to go on; daylight would catch us before we could get half way to our destination. I says to the girl, "Get down now, and follow me quick." And we came into town right behind our pursuers. I went straight for my brother's house on Carpenter street, and called him up. He said:

"You'd better get in here quick. My house has been watched all nigh, and I think they just left."

"So we hustled in, and began to plan how to get the girl out of the city. My brother said that John Stewart was going to take a gang of colored men out to the neighborhood of Lyman's to go plowing."

"That's all right," I said. "now, let us get her up a boy's rig and send her out with them as a boy. None but Stewart need know, and he can tell Lyman all about her." So we rigged her out and sent her to the country in that way in daylight."

"One of our men down near St. Louis that helped run slaves off got shot about this time, and broke our line for nearly six weeks, during which time she remained at Lyman's. Finally he sent word that something must be done. She couldn't be restrained from showing herself, and they were in terror lest she give the whole underground railroad gang away. I sent word to Mrs. Lyman to tell the girl I was going to shoot her. And I did go and hunted the house over for her, shot my pistol off a few times and scared her nearly to death. Of course I couldn't find her, but she was so frightened that when she was told to go into the basement and remain hid she did so.

"After some time we succeeded in getting her out of the country, off towards Canada."

"Oh," said our informant, after relating the above, "I could give you a whole lot of such scrapes. But I'll never forget the night I spent in trying to get that girl away."<sup>141</sup>

William K. Donnegan: Murdered in Springfield Race Riot of 1908

William K. Donnegan was killed in the Springfield Race Riot of 1908.<sup>142</sup>

Provoked by a false accusation from a young white woman that she had been raped by a black man, white citizens of Springfield, Illinois gathered on Friday, August 14, 1908 at the county jail. When they learned that the sheriff had secretly removed two black prisoners accused of raping white women, the crowd went on a rampage. They set fire to the black business district, shot and killed Scott Burton, a black barber shop owner, burned his shop and paraded his body from his porch to a tree several blocks away where it was hanged. A group of women and young boys even stopped to pose for a camera in front of a tree where Burton was killed.

The mob moved to the black residential area of Springfield, where rioters set fire to the black homes and black families fled for safety. In a move ironically reminiscent of the Biblical Passover where Hebrews marked their dwellings with lamb's blood so that God could identify and pass over them, white residents placed white sheets and handkerchiefs outside their homes to warn the mob not to burn their houses. By the time firefighters arrived, the white crowd estimated at 12,000 people had grown so unruly that they cut the firehoses to prevent the rescue effort.

Another mob gathered the following evening and attempted to enter the State Arsenal where displaced blacks were being housed. After being stopped by the militia guard, the angry group headed for the home of William Donnegan, a wealthy 84-year-old black cobbler married to a white woman. The white citizens cut his throat, dragged his body across the street, and lynched him in a local school yard. By the end of the weekend, seven people had been killed, 40 homes destroyed, 24 businesses forced to close, and more than $200,000 worth of property damaged. Although a grand jury made 107 indictments, only one person was ever convicted -- for stealing a saber from a guard -- and no one was convicted for the murders of the two black men.

... the peace ended on Saturday evening. A mob gathered once again at the Old Court House Building and then began to move in the direction of the State Arsenal Building. A small group attempted to enter the State Arsenal where displaced blacks were being housed. The group was stopped by a militia guard, but the mob merely changed direction and proceeded to march across the capitol grounds and headed for the home of William Donnegan. He was an elderly long time resident of Springfield. Donnegan was eighty-four years old and a cobbler by trade; a respected resident of the community who owned his own home outside the Badlands and also owned some adjacent properties which were occupied by members of his family. He was known to be a friend and the cobbler of Abraham Lincoln. Donnegan made a small fortune bringing southern blacks to Springfield to find jobs. He had never been accused of a crime. He had however, broken the unwritten mores of being married to a white woman for the last thirty-two years. The mob approached Donnegan's home. When he came out to find what they were up to, they grabbed him, cut his throat, dragged his body across the street, and lynched him in the Edwards School yard. He was still alive when the national guard cut him down, but he died early the next morning. This lynching was the last mob action of the riot.<sup>143</sup>

Rev. Dr. James H. Magee [1839-1912]

Rev. Dr. James H. Magee wrote a semi-autobiographical book which he published in 1873 while serving as a pastor of the Union Baptist Church in Cincinnati, Ohio. He studied at the Pastors College of London, England during 1867-68.

Magee was born the son of a former Kentucky slave in Madison County one year before Illinois was officially a “free” state. His father, Lazarus, had to purchase his mother, Susan, from her owner in Louisville, Kentucky, from whence they went to Upper Alton and thence to Macoupin County where they were able to purchase land.

The Magee children were denied educational opportunity equal to that of the white children of Macoupin County, and so they were sent to Racine, Wisconsin, for their schooling. On completing his education, Magee taught in a Jerseyville school for black children, was ordained a minister of the Baptist Church, and held several small pastorates, including one at the Zion Baptist Church in Springfield in 1864. He did not stay there because the senior pastor refused to yield the pulpit to his junior assistant. Later that same year, he attended a Baptist convention in St. Louis, where, he says, “I had much conversation about the one object of my desire....education...Time passed on and still my thirst for learning increased. I happened to think of a plan by which I thought I should be able to facilitate the obtaining of much wanted treasure.”

Magee’s plan took him to Toronto, where he continued his education while serving one of the largest black Baptist churches in Canada. He states in his book: “Although an American born subject, I must confess that I felt more at home the very first time my feet ever trod upon British soil than I ever felt in America.” It was his sad duty to preach a sermon on April 14, 1865, when news of Lincoln’s assassination reached Toronto, which, he says, “was a vast house of mourning.”

Magee’s desire to study under Spurgeon was so great that although he had been denied admission, he nevertheless sailed on May 18, 1867, from Montreal, aboard the “noble steamer Hibernian,” to personally implore the rector for a place of study. He succeeded and, a year later, returned to Canada with a private library given to him by Spurgeon himself.

John M. Palmer, Jessie Palmer Weber, Secretary of State James A. Rose, and Gov. [Richard] Oglesby were willing to accept and reward Magee despite the lack of respect by the bulk of society.

In Springfield, Magee formed the Illinois State Colored Historical Society, held the presidency of the Ambidexter Institute, which was a manual-training school, and continued to lecture and preach the Gospel. He publicly castigated the school board in 1906 for denying valedictorian honors to a young African American girl who had rightfully earned the distinction and for barring students of color from commencement exercises. Magee spent the last 12 years of his life as a messenger for the state printer’s office, which was under the aegis of his friend, James Rose.<sup>154</sup>

Ruth Charlotte Ellis

Ruth Charlotte Ellis was the daughter of Charles and Carrie Faro Ellis and the granddaughter of Joseph Faro (Jr.) (7.7) and Hettie Davis. Ruth resided in Springfield from 1899 to 1936. Ruth is not buried in Oak Ridge, but her grandfather, Joseph, is. She is such an interesting and important figure in the 20th century American civil rights movement that I include here her brief biographical information.

Ellis was born in Springfield, Illinois, on July 23, 1899 to Charlie Ellis and Carrie Farro Ellis. She was the youngest of four children and the only daughter. Her parents were born in the last years of slavery in Tennessee. Ellis' mother died when she was a teen. She came out as a lesbian around 1915, and graduated from Springfield High School in 1919, at a time when fewer than seven percent of African Americans graduated from secondary school. In the 1920s, she met the only woman she ever lived with, Ceciline "Babe" Franklin. They moved together to Detroit, Michigan in 1937 where Ellis became the first American woman to own a printing business in that city. She made a living printing stationery, fliers, and posters out of her house. Ellis and Franklin's house was also known in the African American community as the "gay spot". It was a central location for gay and lesbian parties, and also served as a refuge for African American gays and lesbians. Although Ellis and Franklin eventually separated, they were together for more than 30 years. Franklin's died in 1973. Throughout her life, Ellis was an advocate for the rights of gays and lesbians, and of African Americans. She died in her sleep at her home on October 5, 2000.<sup>170</sup>

On July 23, 1899, 38-year-old Charles Ellis (born in 1861) and 34-year-old Carrie Faro Ellis (born in 1865) gave birth to their first daughter Ruth [Charlotte Ellis]. [Siblings: Charles J. (born 1890), Harry D. (born 1894), Wellington B. (born 1896)] Charles and Carrie were of modest means, although her father Charles Ellis held the distinction of serving as Springfield's first black mail carrier.

Charles and Carrie Faro Ellis probably would not have guessed that their first and only daughter would outlive their entire family. In a world of white privilege and male patriarchy, the idea that a small-framed, dark-skinned black woman would live to become a cultural icon and one day celebrate her 100th birthday as perhaps the oldest living "out" lesbian in America would defy all the odds for her survival.

The birth of Ruth's parents in 1861 and 1865 marked the beginning and end of the bloodiest war in America's history. They were born in the slave state of Tennessee in the last years of slavery. They traveled up the Mississippi River to Illinois, a free state that sided with the Union in the war, and whose capital, Springfield. Ruth Ellis was born in a somewhat integrated community known for its relatively progressive values, but that sense of community would soon self-destruct only a month after Ruth's ninth birthday celebration.

Civil rights leaders were so alarmed by the race riot in Lincoln's home town that they convened an urgent meeting in an apartment in New York City on the 100th anniversary of Lincoln's birth to form a watchdog group, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Although the NAACP hoped to protect blacks from future outbreaks of race violence, Ruth and her family had already managed to cheat death. Charles Ellis, armed only with a sword, refused to leave his house in Springfield and stayed to thwart off a band of rowdy, brick-throwing whites. Young Ruth watched as her father defended the house in 1908, but today she describes the incident with a certain quiet detachment that seems to belie the gravity of the danger she faced.

The Springfield Race Riot of 1908

Two leading black political captains, one a Democrat and the other a Republican, saw their businesses attacked during the riot. The mob's attack was nonpartisan—they thoroughly wrecked both places. One of these black power brokers was Republican C. C. Lee, a Virginia-born businessman in his mid-thirties. With the aid of his wife, Lee had succeeded in several ventures in Springfield. A saloonkeeper in 1900, by 1902 he ran a small hotel as well. In 1907 Lee launched a more ambitious scheme and combined a theater, saloon, poolroom, and restaurant in a single large building on East Washington Street. A white newspaper described him contemptuously at the height of his career: "Lee is a white coon, short of stature, a flashy dresser on whose bosom there generally sparkles a diamond as big as a hand mirror." Lee's rival Democrat William Johnson, according to the white press, "conducted a saloon and crap game on the levee between Seventh and Eighth streets." Allegedly, most black voters from the First and Seventh Wards owed allegiance to one or the other of these two men, whose businesses "swarmed with colonies of illegal voters" on election days. Rioters systematically wrecked both Lee's and Johnson's places. Lee's losses alone, which included an electric piano that the mob chopped into kindling, amounted to over $8,000. Though the rioters perhaps had other reasons for sacking the black political captains' businesses, Lee and Johnson, conspicuous with their "flashy" clothes and election-day wads of dollar bills, may have symbolized to these whites the blacks' so-called "exalted notion of importance" that Reverend Rogers so deplored.<sup>201</sup>

"With few exceptions, former black saloonkeepers stayed on in Springfield, but they worked in different occupations. William Johnson, one of the two major black political ward captains, for example, sustained major losses when the mob sacked his saloon. He remained on the Levee but ran a pool hall instead of a drinking establishment after the riot. His rival, C. C. Lee, reopened his saloon a block away from Johnson's place on Washington Street."<sup>202</sup>

Henry moved with his parents to Ohio about 1835, and one year later to Rush County, Indiana. There at age fourteen he was bound to farm work for a Quaker family and assigned to the ordinary labors of the farm. He continued this until 1843, when, at the early age of twenty, he married Miss Roberts, who lived but about one year.

Brown studied to become a preacher and was licensed to preach about 1846. Mr. Brown was an African Methodist Episcopal Church pastor. He began an itinerant ministry in the A.M.E. church, walking from town to town in service to his congregation. Many times during his thirty-seven years of active church work, he was refused meals and lodging because of his race. On a boat trip from Quincy to Cairo, Illinois, the captain did not allow Brown to dine with the other passengers. Declining to argue, he instead knelt and prayed: If God intended more equitable treatment for blacks than was being applied to him, would God prevent the boat from further trips. The vessel reached Cairo but never made the return journey. He was a faithful and constant laborer in the Lord's vineyard, his ministry during which time many souls have been led out of darkness into the light of Christ.

In 1847 at Paris, Illinois, Henry Brown met Mrs. Mary Ann King, an 18 year-old widow. She was the daughter of Allen Williams, a wealthy gentleman of that place. They became engaged as the result of their first meeting, and were married a few weeks later on October 23, 1848 at the residence of Mary's parents in Paris, Illinois. They resided in Paris, Illinois until 1855, and then moved to Springfield.

Except for four years residence at Galena and Quincy, Henry made Springfield his home at 1530 East Mason Street. In both Quincy and Springfield, Brown helped slaves escaping to the north on the Underground Railroad. On one occasion, he reportedly gave his own coat and vest to a poor black man. Of immense physical stature, Brown stood 6' 3" and weighed 250 pounds.

Brown was a great admirer of Abraham Lincoln and served him in various capacities until he went to Washington as President. Lincoln's remains were brought back to Springfield in May 1865, and Rev. Brown was summoned by telegram from Quincy to Springfield. He and another local minister, Rev. W. C. Trevan, led Mr. Lincoln's old family horse "Bob" in the funeral procession<sup>216</sup> Shown in the photograph attending the horse are the Reverend Henry Brown, to the left or rear of the horse, and the Reverend Trevan on the right or front of the horse.

In 1871 in Chicago, Brown built the Bethel Church, borrowing funds from Democratic politician and future mayor Carter H. Harrison. Brown later became pastor of the Milwaukee, Wisconsin A.M.E. Church. His final active ministry was in Avondale, Illinois, where an accident in 1894 left him an invalid.

In 1881, Henry Brown was pastor of the A.M.E. Church at Milwaukee, Wisconsin, and resided in Springfield.<sup>217</sup> The 1887 Springfield City Directory lists him as a minister, residing at 300 North 10th.<sup>218</sup>

Rev. Henry Brown died at his Springfield residence on September 3, 1906, at age eighty-three and was buried in the Colored Section at Oak Ridge Cemetery, across the way from the Lincoln tomb.<sup>219</sup>

NEGRO EMPLOYED BY LINCOLN DEAD

Rev. Henry Brown Expires At Home In This City.

Was Man of Massive Build and With Rev. W.C. Trevan Led Lincoln's Horses In Martyred President's Funeral Cortège—Aged Divines Name Connected Inseparably With History of Church Work Among Colored Race of Springfield.

Brown—Died at 6:25 p.m. Monday, September 23, 1906 at his residence, 1530 East Mason Street, Rev. Henry Brown, aged 83 years, 4 months and 16 days. The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed and will be announced later.

Mr. Brown's name was connected inseparably with the history of church work among the colored race in this city and state. For the past thirty years he has resided in this city, and for more than fifty years his life and interests has been identified with the growth of Springfield.

Henry Brown was born in Halifax County, N.C., April 17, 1823. At the age of nine he moved with his parents to Ohio and a year or two later to Indiana where he grew to manhood. Soon after reaching his majority he was licensed to preach and while in the line of his duty he met Mrs. Mary Ann King at Paris, Ill., whom he married Oct. 23, 1848.

Shortly after the marriage he moved to Paris, Ill., living there until 1855, when he came to Springfield and went to work for Abraham Lincoln, then a rising lawyer of the Springfield bar. Mr. Brown soon joined the active ministry and began a life of itinerant work in the A.M.E. church. He kept up this active work for thirty-seven years. While following the line of his duty he endured many privations in those early days. Often he walked from city to city or from village to village over the circuit that constituted his work. He was a man of immense physique, being six feet, three inches in height and weighing 250 pounds, a fact that enabled him to withstand many hardships to which a less hardy man would have succumbed. In those early days, it was not an easy matter for a stranger to secure accommodations, especially if he was colored. Many time Mr. Brown was forced to eat the scanty meal that was passed out to him upon the porch amid the falling snow and biting winds of winter.

While traveling on a boat from Quincy to Cairo, he was prevented from taking seat at the table with the remainder of the passengers. He declined to make any trouble about the matter, but rose from his seat, knelt down and prayed to God. He pleaded that if it were the will of the Heavenly Father that his race should be so treated, the God's will be done, but if it were not so, then he asked that God would not permit the boat to make another trip. The boat reached Cairo in safety but never made the return passage.

Many a poor slave escaping by means of the underground railway during the civil war, was upheld on his way by Mr. Brown, who acted as a “conductor” at the Quincy and Springfield stations. His idea of the golden rule was illustrated by one instance when he gave his own coat and vest to a poor fellow who was without one.

At Lincoln’s funeral Mr. Brown occupied a prominent place. He had been telegraphed for to take part in the cortege and with Rev. W. C. Trevan led Lincoln’s horses in the funeral procession. The two men attracted much attention as both were over six feet tall and of massive build. The badge which Mr. Brown wore at the funeral is still in possession of the family and was one of the keepsakes that the descendant prized very highly. While stationed in Chicago, prior to the fire of 1871, Mr. Brown built the Bethel church, borrowing the money to complete it from Carter H. Harrison.

His last active work was at Avondale, Ill., where he met with an accident, resulting in a broken leg and almost total loss of his bodily powers. Since that time, 1894, he had not been able to leave his premises or even walk about the house.

Mr. Brown’s wife survives him. To Mr. Brown and his wife were born ten children, only two of whom survive, Mrs. Nannie Morgan of Chicago and Mrs. Kate Lee of this city.

Negroes Celebrate Anniversary of Emancipation in British West Indies at Fair Ground

The August 5, 1859 Journal reported on the Springfield African American celebration of the anniversary of the emancipation of slaves in the West India colony in 1834.

CELEBRATION OF THE COLORED PEOPLE OF SPRINGFIELD

The colored people of this city, celebrated Monday the first of August, in commemoration of the emancipation of the 800,000 slaves men, women and children, in the West India colony, in 1834. They went out to the Fair ground, whereupon the following speeches were delivered:

Opening address--P. L. Donnegan; subject, "West India Emancipation." Mr. Donnegan made a good speech; one that did good to the audience and honor to himself.

The Rev. Mr. Myers was next called upon to occupy the stand; subject, "Sabbath Schools." His speech was very encouraging to parents and children.

After this the audience were dismissed till after refreshment. It was amusing to see every one take their baskets and retire on the blue grass, to partake of their pic-nic dinner. After which the audience was called on to rally around the stand to hear more speeches. Mr. Green, from Pa. next occupied the stand; subject, "Education." His speech was good, but not lengthy.

The Rev. G. Nelson from Belleville, next spoke; subject, "Temperance." His speech was animating and good. After which the whole audience was greatly deceived by a young man from Belleville, John W., Menard, Jr., who came to the stand. His voice is very strong and his manner impressive. Subject "American Slavery," which he painted in its darkest hues, and gave able remarks in defense of Liberty and equality. His speech was truly the best of the day; after which all retired with hearty cheers for Menard, Fred. Douglass, and others.

African American Meeting Regarding Schools

On Monday, November 8, 1852, Springfield African Americans met and adopted a resolution saying "...we must speak in bold terms." The resolution opposed the Wood River Colored Baptist Association's proposal for separate, State-funded colored schools, and stated that they would not ask for state funded support for separate, colored schools. They asserted "That we, as a portion of the colored population, representing its claims, feel a deep, very deep interest, in our schools, and think it the only sure way to redeem ourselves from the bondage we are now in, sympathize with our race, and will do every thing that is in our power to educate our children by our exertions, and without the boldness to ask aid from the people of the State." The resolution was signed by 20 Springfield African American men.

Springfield, Nov. 8, 1852.

At a meeting of the colored citizens of this city, on the 8th instant, after having deliberated over the matter concerning our interests, common schools, etc. had occasion to notice the following, which we must speak of in bold terms; and which, after a vote was taken, was unanimously adopted:

The undersigned having just noticed an article written for the paper entitled, the "Western Citizens," by the "Wood River Colored Baptist Association," and also the Minutes of the same, wish to make the following reply:

Whereas the "Wood River Colored Baptist Association," having met at Jacksonville, Illinois, devised ways and means for the purpose of establishing a system of common school education, under the cloak of the colored people of the State of Illinois;

We, as a portion of the colored people of this State, in Springfield, do not desire any such system of common school education, under the name of one distinct sect or denomination; nor will we join in with it; nor give our support to it; but will do every thing that is in our power to indemnify ourselves against any of the above proceedings that may have been conjured up in this association;

That we deem it an injury to our present established schools, and that it will hinder the energy of those who are willing to aid, and have already aided in the support of our respective schools; and that we do not wish to give our aid in any measure that will hinder our progress that has already begun;

That we, as a portion of the colored population, representing its claims, feel a deep, very deep interest, in our schools, and think it the only sure way to redeem ourselves from the bondage we are now in, sympathize with our race, and will do every thing that is in our power to educate our children by our exertions, and without the boldness to ask aid from the people of the State;

The Colored Section: Oak Ridge Cemetery

And that in examining the Minutes of the Association, we notice an article proposing to establish a press, which will be attached to the Institution, and put into operation as soon as the amount of funds necessary for its support can be raised. In regard to this we can say, that it reminds us of the bill which was handed into the Legislature two years ago--coming, in part, from the same source; and consequently we do not feel willing to embark in any such enterprise; ner shall we.

After reading the above, what patriot, as he is called, can enlist in the resolutions which that Association have gotten up, without the consent of any persons but themselves?

COLORED SCHOOL.

Whereas the people of color in this place desirous of educating their children, and finding themselves too weak in point of numbers to sustain a school permanently amongst them, therefore we, the Trustees of this the Colored School, in view of our weakness, propose giving a PUBLIC SUPPER, in aid of this School, on Thursday, the 20th of this month, at the Colored Baptist Church, in this city. We have appointed a committee of females to solicit donations among our white friends towards making the Supper, and we hope that their claims will not be disregarded.

Teacher Sought for "Colored School"

An 1855 Illinois law required that in townships with African American residents, the school taxes paid by them be used for "colored children."<sup>240</sup> On April 13, 1855, the Journal reported that Landen C. Coleman., a 25 year-old African American Springfield shoemaker,<sup>241</sup> and M. Donnegan, a _____, as Trustees of the Springfield Colored School, sought a teacher for the colored school. Applicants were to be made at Coleman's, probably his shoe shop in the 200 block of South Sixth Street--one door east of the American House at the southeast corner of Sixth and Adams Streets.

Presley L. Donnegan Petitions Legislature Concerning School Tax for Colored Schools

On January 11, 1853, Presley L. Donnegan and other Springfield African Americans petition the Illinois legislature asking that African Americans be exempted from the school tax and assuring the legislature that African Americans would "sustain their own schools."

...divisions within the ranks of the blacks occurred on the issues of whether they should pay a school tax and, if so, whether the tax should be returned to them and for what purpose it should be used. Three schooling petitions from blacks or blacks and whites were presented in the General Assemblies of 1853 and 1855. The first, from Presley L. Donegan and other blacks of Springfield, presented on January 11, 1853, prayed that the blacks be exempted from the school tax and assured the legislators that the blacks would then "sustain" their own schools.<sup>242</sup>

The legislature took no action on the petition.

Negro Meeting on Liberia Question at Clinton Hall

On February 12, 1858, Landen C. Coleman, a 28 year-old African American Springfield shoemaker, was Chairman of a meeting of colored citizens of Springfield held at Clinton Hall<sup>244</sup> to consider the Liberia question.<sup>245</sup> The resolution is an eloquent statement of the beliefs of most of Springfield's African Americans. The author remains unknown.

Pursuant to notice given, there was a meeting of colored citizens at Clinton Hall, for the purpose of considering the Liberia question.

The meeting opened by prayer.

On motion, L. Coleman was called to the Chair.

On motion, G. (Gilbert) Johnson was appointed Secretary.

On motion, resolved that there be a committee appointed to draw up a series of resolution for this meeting.

The house now being called to order, and the Chairman stating the object of our meeting together was to make known our wants, and that if there was any gentleman who wished to address the house, could now have an opportunity of doing so.

After which there was several addresses from several distinguished gentlemen.

After which, the committee returned and reported.

Whereas, the "Illinois State Colonization Society" has, at its last meeting in this city (Springfield) expressed the determination to ask the Legislature of this State for pecuniary assistance in removing the people of color from the State and whereas, it is also stated in the proceedings of said Society, that "some of the most intelligent and enterprising of the people of color in the State of Illinois desire the assistance of the Colonization Society, to enable them to remove to Liberia or some other part of Africa" therefore, be it resolved by the colored people of Springfield, assembled in public meeting to take this subject into consideration:

That we deem this a suitable occasion to express our views and make known our feeling upon this subject.

That after careful inquiry, we have been unable to ascertain than any intelligent man of color, having the confidence of the people here assembled, either desires to remove to Africa, or requires aid for such an enterprise.

That we cannot regard the "Illinois State Colonization Society," as a charitable institution, deserving the sympathy and support of the Christian public, or as a public benefit, for the support of which it is the duty of the Legislature to tax the good people of this State, in as much as we are not aware of any benefit which it is calculated to bestow, either upon the State at large or upon the colored people particularly; with all due submission to the superior wisdom of the gentlemen who have organized and who manage the Colonization society, we cannot perceive what benefit it will be to the State of Illinois to remove from it the five or ten thousand laborers composing our colored population. The State needs laborers to cultivate its fields and to perform various other services, and we are both able and willing to work. We also believe that the colored people of this State are, in general, as industrious and inoffensive a population as can anywhere be found. We do not interfere with other people, and only ask that we may be let alone, and simply protected in our "inalienable rights to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, as are other citizens of the State. We have no desire to exchange the broad prairies, fertile soil, healthful climate and Christian civilization of Illinois, for the dangerous navigation of the wide ocean, the tangled forests, savage beasts, heathen people and mismatched shores of Africa. We also believe that the operations of the Colonization Society are calculated to excite prejudices against us, and to impel ignorant or ill disposed persons to take measures for our expulsion from the land of our nativity, from our country and from our homes. We, therefore, beg the Legislature and the people of this State, that they will lend no countenance to such a project.

That the action of those southern States which are now taking measures for the re-opening of the African slave trade, and the importation of tens of thousands of hopeless victims, torn from their homes by the slave trader or by those whom he has excited to make war upon each other, to engage with him in his foul traffic, affords the clearest evidence of the mistake of those who believe that the expulsion of the colored race would be a benefit to this country. If our labors are so valuable as slaves, will they be less so as freemen? Why should the northern States go to such trouble and expense to send us from the country, when the south is so bent upon the introduction of Africans, as to propose the abrogation of all laws, human and Divine, by which this traffic is forbidden? We, therefore, most earnestly appeal to our white fellow men, if we may not call them fellow citizens, in the northern States, not to gratify the inhuman slave dealer of the south, by oppressing us or expelling us from their borders, so as to give countenance to those who would represent us as unworthy of the privileges and blessings of freemen.

That the colored people of this State should earnestly petition the Legislature at its next session to give them greater security in their persons and property, than they now have under the laws of this State, and especially to give them the benefits of common schools for which they are now taxed, without having any provision made for their instruction.

That they respectfully submit to their consideration of the capitalists, farmers and house keepers of Illinois, whether a change of the laws of this State, so as to allow of the free settlement of people of color in the State, would not be favorable to the improvement of the State, by making labor cheaper and more abundant.

That we do for ourselves, and in behalf of our colored brethren throughout the United States, most earnestly protest against the recent decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Dred Scott, not only because said Scott and his family, were by that decision most unjustly doomed to slavery, but also because said decision misrepresents, (especially in the language of Chief Justice Taney,) the great charter of American liberty, the Declaration of Independence and the spirit of the American people, as well as the Constitution of the United States. We take that Declaration as the Gospel of freedom; we believe in its great truth, "that all men are created equal, endowed with certain inalienable rights, among which are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." We know ourselves to be men, and we claim our rights as such under this "Declaration" of the Old Thirteen. We also claim the right of citizenship in this, the country of our birth. We were born here, and here we desire to die and to be buried. We are not African. The best blood of Virginia, Maryland, Kentucky and other States, where our brethren are still held in bondage by their brothers, flows in our veins. We are not, therefore, aliens, either in blood or in race, to the people of the country in which we were born. Why then should we be disfranchised and denied the rights of citizenship in the north, and those of human nature itself in the south? We here, most solemnly protest against this decision of the Supreme Court, as designed to rob us of the inherent rights of humanity, as well as of the soil upon which we were born and to countenance the tyrannical and odious doctrine that we "have no rights" which the white man is bound to respect, and that one may be justly and lawfully reduced to slavery by another.

On motion, the preamble and resolutions were adopted.

Committee--P. L. Donnegan, Chairman, S. Donnegan, N. (Nathaniel) B. Smallwood, A. (Albert) W. Co(l)lier and T. (Thornton) Coleman
Adjourned.<sup>246</sup>

In 1843 the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church (African American Methodist Episcopal) was organized by Rev. Spencer Donnegan at the home of John Wesley McDaniel on Sangamon Avenue on what is now the site of the State Fair grounds. After a year, the place of worship was moved to Klein and Carpenter Streets and then to a log cabin at Fourth and Reynolds Streets (Fourth and Mason Streets). Rev. Spencer Donnegan was a barber and shaved Lincoln many times.

FIRE.—A fire broke out on Sunday morning last in the City Hotel stables, which were consumed, together with fourteen valuable horses and a cow. Thence the flames extended to the grocery store of B. F. Jewett, which was destroyed together with the billiards saloon of William Radford on the second floor. It then communicated with the City Hotel and one or two tenements adjoining, all of which were totally destroyed. But for the extraordinary efforts of citizens and strangers, the fire would have extended and the destruction of property have been incalculable. The entire loss is estimated at $12,000.
